Notice Introductory and Commendatory.

On the publication or proposed publication of a book, it is legitimate to inquire, What is the object? Why another book? Why this? And it is too late in the world's time to deny the right, or question the propriety of thus asking for the reason of things.

This little unpretending volume, made up in great part of names, which had a local habitation in a very rural district, may seem to many uncalled for, and not to justify the labor and expense of its compilation and printing. But if it has nothing to boast of renowned characters beyond what is common to other localities and settlements in its vicinity, it still contains the seeds of things whose productions it becomes us well to study and understand.

As to names, the world is full of them, because it is full of things, and we have the highest authority for their use and record. When in the beginning God made the light, he gave it a name; he called the light day, the darkness he called night; the firmament, heaven; the dry land, earth; and the gathering of the waters he called seas. So, when he made man he called him Adam, and the helpmate for him, Eve; and these two were the head and progenitors of all our race. This is ample authority for names and their record. We have also equal authority in the Scripture genealogy for the registration of families, as such, in their local habitation.

The sons of Noah, Shem, Ham and Japhet, went forth out of the Ark, and of them the whole earth was overspread. Again, it is written, (Gen. 10:32,) These are the families of the sons of Noah, after their generations in their nations, and by them were the nations divided in the earth after the flood.

Every settlement has a beginning, a development, a progress. Every smaller settlement is an integral part of the larger; the district of the town, the town of the county, the county of the state, the state of the nation; yea, the nations make but one world. Families make a settlement, and if the origin and progress of a settlement contain items of value and of interest, to no others, surely they must to themselves and to their descendants. This work was undertaken some two years since, by ABIEL BROWN, Esq., a descendent of one of the first settlers, in the west part of Simsbury, now Canton, not in anticipation of any personal pecuniary profit, but for the collection and preservation of facts and incidents connected with the first settlers of the town, which it was believed, might be useful to the present, and coming generations.

In the prosecution of his undertaking, he was stimulated by the urgent request of many of the younger men of the place who expressed their conviction that such a record, made and preserved, would be invaluable to the inhabitants of the town in after time. The result, extending far beyond the first intention of the author, is short sketches, with the record of about one hundred and eighty-five families, extending down to not far from the close of the ministry of Rev. Jeremiah Hallock.

The materials of the work have been gathered by an examination of monuments and burial records in the town of Canton, of monuments and probate records in the town of Simsbury; some items were collected from Windsor, and some from Plymouth, Mass. Beside these and similar sources of information, the author was largely indebted to the storehouse of his own memory, by the strength and tenacity of which, he, above all was the man fitted for such an undertaking. The man who could "remember where he was and what he did every day in a single year,"* was of all, the man to undertake such a labor.

* A remark he once made to his nephew, Heman Humphrey, D. D., Pittsfield, Massachusetts.

Perfection in this work is not claimed. The lapse of more than one hundred years and the extreme paucity of family records make this impossible. The amount of labor, both physical and mental the work has cost, can be understood by those only who have themselves been engaged in some work of this kind.

Mr. Brown expressed to his family, his felt obligation to many individuals who had rendered him essential aid in his undertaking, particularly to Ephraim Mills, Esq., of Canton, and John O. Pettibone, Esq., of Simsbury.

Expressing his deep regret that we know so little of our ancestors, and in the hope that his efforts might contribute to an increased acquaintanceship with the families, the character, and the influence of the past generations, he was suddenly called from all earthly cares and efforts, leaving the work he had in hand to be completed and disposed of by others.

The work is rather a record than a history; a record of families, and noteworthy events, which we doubt not will interest and instruct the people of Canton, and such, at least, in other parts of the land and world as look back to this town as the place of their nativity and of very many of their most hallowed memories.

A GENEALOGICAL SKETCH OR HISTORY OF THE ANCESTRY OF THE BROWN FAMILY.

PETER BROWN, one of that memorable little band who landed at Plymouth, Mass., Dec. 22d, 1620, appears by traditional accounts, in connection with many historical facts and other sketches of record, with other corroborating circumstances, to be the progenitor of the Windsor Browns. He came to America single; was by trade a carpenter; he died 1633. Peter Brown, 2d, was born 1632; he married Mary Gillett, 1658; his monument in Windsor burying-ground tells us that he died Oct., 1692, aged 60 years. He had four sons, Peter, John, Jonathan, and Cornelius. They all had numerous families. In 1694 they exchanged lands that were their fathers with the selectmen of the town of Windsor. John, 1st, the 2d son, was married to Miss Elizabeth Loomis, 1692; she died 1723. They had three sons and eight daughters. The names of the sons were John, 2d, Isaac, and Daniel. John, 2d, the eldest son and the fifth of the family was born March, 1700; married Miss Mary Eggleston, March, 1725. He died 1790, aged 90 years. His wife died 1789, aged 87. They had two sons and seven daughters. Mary, the oldest of the family, remained single through life and died aged 100 years.

Margery married David Filley; she died 1775, aged about 45; she left no children alive. The other daughters all died in childhood and youth, most of them with the canker rash; their deaths were in quick succession. The names of the two sons were John, 3d, and Ezra. John, 3d, the oldest of them, was born November 4th, 1728; married Miss Hannah Owen, 1758. She was the daughter of Elijah and Hannah Owen. Her grandfather, Isaac Owen, was one of the first settlers in Turkey Hills; her mother was daughter of Brewster Higley. Elijah Owen died September, 1741, aged 35; his relict died 1806, aged 90. After the death of Mr. Owen, she married Pelatiah Mills, and was the mother of a numerous Mills family. The names of the Owen children were Rebecca, Elijah and Hannah ; names of the Mills children were Pelatiah, Samuel, Roger, Patty, Eli, Frederick, Susannah and Elihu. John Brown, 3d, was chosen Captain of the train-band, in West Simsbury in the spring of 1776. His commission from Governor Trumbull, bears date May 23d, 1776. A regimental order from Col. Jonathan Pettibone to Capt. John Brown, bears date June 11th, 1776, and reads as follows :

To John Brown, Captain of the 8th Company in the 18 Regiment of the Militia in the Colony of Connecticut.

WHEREAS the General Assembly have Enacted, that One third Part of the 2d, 3d, 4th, 7th, 8th, 9th, and 20th Regiments, and One quarter part of the other Regiments of the Militia, or a Number equivalent thereto, be forthwith inlisted or detached, from the Limits of the several Regiments in this Colony, to be held in Readiness, for the Defence of this or any of the adjoining Colonies; and the Colonels or chief Officers of the respective Regiments, are to issue the necessary Orders therefor.

As Witness our Hands.

The company was soon raised and with it, Captain Brown marched and joined the army at New York, where, after about two months service he was taken sick with the dysentery and died September 3d, 1776, leaving a wife and eleven children, the eldest being but eighteen years of age, and the oldest son but nine.

DR. SAMUEL BARBER, the subject of these historical sketches, had the reputation of a good citizen, although somewhat eccentric in his habits and not unfrequently impulsive in his actions. He doted much in his skill in roots and herbs; was famous as a hunter, the woods at that time affording an abundance of game. In one of his hunting excursions in Norfolk, accompanied by some of his sons they chased a large panther into his den, and how to dislodge him from his hiding place was the first question to be solved. The old gentleman, nothing daunted, Putnam like, descended into the cavern; after grouping his way some distance the panther not relishing this intrusion upon his retreat suddenly turned and made for the entrance of his den which he accomplished by closely squeezing by his bold intruder. The panther, on his arrival at the mouth of the den, seeing the party without prepared to give him battle, stood motionless, when one of the sons discharged a ball through his body and intestines which produced no emotion, the animal sullenly retaining his position. This act of the son called forth a sharp reprimand from his father, for his not taking a more effective aim, and calling for his gun the old gentleman discharged a ball through the head of the animal which put an end to his existence. This exploit may justly be put on a parallel with the famous story of "Putnam and the Wolf."

The family of Barbers were among the earliest and most conspicuous of West Simsbury and a more extended notice of them is here given. The immediate ancestor of the family of Barbers who settled in West Simsbury was Samuel Barber who died about 1725. He was a descendant of the first Thomas Barber, of Windsor. He married Mercy Holcomb, granddaughter of the first Thomas Holcomb. This Mercy died 1787, aged 96. She removed from the old parish to West Simsbury in the year 1738, with her four sons, Samuel, Thomas, Jonathan and John, and her daughters, Mercy, wife of Ephraim Buel, and Sarah, wife of John Case, 4th. Her sons settled on Cherries Brook, on lands contiguous to each other, comprising the meadows and best lands in the center school district in Canton. The family were noted for their habits of immigration and are to be found in various states of the Union; few of the descendants (although numerous) are to be met with in the town of Canton.

DR. SAMUEL BARBER. He settled on the farm now owned by Norton Case. He married for his first wife Tryphene Humphrey, daughter of Samuel Humphrey, by whom he had seven sons. Her monument is the oldest in the town of Canton. His second wife was Hannah, daughter of Capt. Noah Humphrey, who commanded a company at the capture of Havanna, in 1762. By this marriage he had seven children, four sons and three daughters.

Capt. Curtis was an officer in the revolutionary army in the first years of the war.

MAJ. ISRAEL CURTIS, oldest son of Peter Curtis, Sen., married Elizabeth Andrus. In his early married state he resided in the near vicinity of his father's house. They buried one child named Elizabeth; he had a son named Zebina, afterward became of notoriety in Windsor, Vermont. He removed to Windsor, Vermont, sometime previous to the commencement of the Revolutionary war, and died a major in the northern army.

MAJ. PETER CURTIS, third son of Peter Curtis, Sen., settled in Farmington; was an officer in the American army of the Revolution; was after the war a brigade major and also a major in the line. He was the first keeper of Newgate prison, in Granby, commencing 1790, and left it in 1796, in declining health, and died in 1797. He had two sons Jeptha and Adna, and two daughters. Betsey and Nancy.

GIDEON CURTIS, was the 4th son of Peter Curtis, Sen. He married Elizabeth or Betsey, daughter of Rev. Gideon Mills. He resided on the premises, and built the house now standing some forty rods north-east from Gen. Ezekiel Hosford's. He was by occupation a blacksmith. He, by an overlifting in his youthful days, brought on a disease or weakness of the back, which caused him to endure frequent spells of sickness and suffering by turns through his remaining years, and brought him down to the grave in 1789. Several circumstances and traits of character in this excellent man, and his amiable companion, are thought worthy of notice in this short sketch of a few things respecting them. They were both, in their natural turn and deportment uncommonly kind and agreeable, but beyond this, they both exhibited those good properties that go to show what divine grace can raise some of our human race to be in the humbler walks of life. They both, to an eminent degree manifested Christian resignation under adversity, which, at the same time was at a great remove from unfeeling indifference. Some things respecting Mr. Curtis will here be noticed. He was troubled with stammering in his speech, to an uncommon degree. He was a singer of the first order. His voice and scientific accomplishments would compare well among the first masters and teachers of that time, though his knowledge and his high attainments, were produced by his own native musical genius, aided by his own application to the science as he had opportunity.

His impediment in speech was no embarrassment in his singing except in mentioning tunes, and occasional speaking, and his vital strength held out to within a short time of his death. His weakness, and spinal sensitiveness was such that for many weeks he required to be lifted from his bed to his chair, and even to be turned from side to side on his bed, yet he could join with his friends and attendants who loved singing, and would occasionally favor them by singing some European or American set pieces, which he had in his mental store, consisting of music from Madan, and others. He would often sing the anthem from 7th of Job, music by

Lyons, and remark at the close, that it was applicable to his own case; he loved to sing the Dying Christian, music by Billings. Having sold the place on which he commenced his family state, he lived his last year in a house then standing the west side of the road, opposite the house of James Humphrey, and died there. He was viewed by Christian people as one who could understandingly confide in the rectitude of God's dealings with him. The same traits of character were seen to adorn the life of his worthy partner, both during his life, and through the remainder of her life, which closed in A.D. 1825. She, for the last twenty-seven years of her life, was the wife of the Rev. Rufus Hawley, of Northington, (now Avon.) It appeared to be a settled principle with her, that whatsoever God did was right. They were the parents of six children.

DR. SOLOMON EVEREST was born April 11th, 1760, and died April 3d, 1822, aged 62 years. He married Miss Amelia Everett, of Winchester, about the year 1782, who was born, in 1767, and died October 22d, 1843, aged 86 years.

Dr. Everest, was a native of Salisbury, Conn., where he spent his youthful days. He studied the medical profession with Dr. Everett, of Winchester.

He first located, as a physician, in the town of Farmington, now Avon, about the year 1782. In 1796, he removed to West Simsbury, now Canton, where he resided the remainder of his life. As a citizen, of the town of Canton, he hardly had his rival. He was a member of the convention who formed the constitution of the state of Connecticut in 1818, several years judge of probate for the district of Simsbury, representative in the General Assembly of Connecticut, all of which civil appointments he discharged with ability, and the strictest integrity.

As a Christian, his character shone with uncommon luster. He was religious without enthusiasm, or austerity, a pillar of the church, wherein he was located. For twenty years, he officiated as deacon of the first Congregational church in Canton, was deeply studied in theology, strictly orthodox in the sentiments of the denomination to which he belonged. Being possessed of an ample fortune which he acquired by persevering industry, and having no lineal descendants to provide for, he was liberal in his lifetime, in aid of religious, and charitable purposes, and by will, left munificent bequests, for the same laudable objects.

As a physician and surgeon, he had but few equals, and educated a number of young men, who became eminent in their profession. The public, placed so much confidence in his professional skill, it was rare that further aid or counsel was solicited, even in extreme cases under his management. As a man, he left a distinguished mark, upon the age in which he lived, and his death, was considered an irreparable loss, to the town of Canton, and its vicinity.

The following incident, which occurred during his medical practice, to some may appear bordering on the ludicrous, but as it may serve to illustrate the happy expedients he could command, when necessary, is the apology for its insertion here.

On a certain occasion, he was called in great haste, to attend to the case of a young girl, belonging to a somewhat marvelous, and eccentric family residing on the borders of a neighboring town, who was laboring under the dire malady of witchcraft. On repairing to the house where the scenes were enacting, he found the patient lying on a bed surrounded by her parents, and grandparents who were in the greatest consternation at what was passing before them, and who pathetically implored the doctor, if possible, to do something to alleviate the sufferings of the youthful patient. On inquiring into the symptoms, of the case, it appeared, the witches would torment her by violently pinching her arms and limbs, so that frequently, she would cry out in agony, the witches were pinching her, and on removing the clothing from her limbs, visible marks of violent pinches would appear on the flesh.

The doctor in the meantime, kept a sharp lookout, and came to the conclusion that the girl was the author of her troubles. For instance, when he was closely observing her, the witches would refrain from pinching, but if he chanced to leave the room, they would commence with renewed vigor.

Now for the remedy. He quietly remarked to the patient, that witchcraft was no uncommon complaint; that he had read and studied into the disorder. It was curable, and he could cure it. Two ways would accomplish the object; either burning or drowning the witches would be effective. He ordered a large cistern to be filled with water, and the sufferer, to be immersed in it, when the witches should again attack her. The operation was carried into effect; the first and second time, the witches became less and less frequent. Before the doctor left, he enjoined on the parents to continue the remedy, whenever the witches should make their appearance. On the doctors retiring, he remarked to his patient, if the water did not effect a cure, he had a large witch iron at home, he could bring, and by heating it red hot and applying it to the place affected he could burn the witches out of her, and fully accomplish a cure. She listened to his remarks with the most profound attention and eventually came to the conclusion, that the doctor's remedy, was worse than the disease.

On the succeeding day but one, anxious to learn the result of his prescriptions, he directed two of his students to make a casual call at the residence of the patient, and report progress.

It is needless to add, they returned with the joyful tidings, the patient was well, and peace and quiet was restored to the afflicted family.

— EATON, with his wife, resided on a location between the family of Everest Case and sons, and Newell Miner. They left Canton about A. D. 1790, and went on to a farm in the north part of Burlington, where he spent the remainder of his life. But little is known to the writer respecting this family. Among his children were Samuel, Westover and Lorana; she connected in marriage with Levi Humphrey, son of Michael Humphrey, of Simsbury.

URIAH EDGECOMB, married Anna, daughter of Jacob Reed; was the first resident on the premises and erected the house which was for many years the residence of the late Elihu Olmsted and sons; the names of his children but little known. Among them were the wife of Josiah Russell, John, the wife of the late Erastus Daily, and Uriah, Jun. There may have been others. He died about A. D. 1810.

JOHN FOX was an early owner and resident in the house, and on the land now owned by the family of the late Robert Case, Jun., deceased, adjoining the Ward farm. It was understood in the early part of the life of the writer that he brought up the young man that bore the name of John F. Frazier, who married Deliverance, daughter of Josiah Clarke, who died in a time of distressing sickness in 1779. Very little is now known to the writer concerning that family.

REV. JEREMIAH HALLOCK was born at Brookhaven, Long Island, 1758. At the age of eight years, he with his parents removed to Goshen, Mass. Mr. Hallock was licensed to preach the gospel in 1784, and was ordained over the church and society of West Simsbury, (now Canton,) in 1785. He was honored for his faithful and unwearied efforts in the service of his divine Lord and Master; during the entire term of his ministry, extending over a period of forty years, and terminating with his life, he exerted a rare influence, not only over the people of his charge, but throughout an extensive circle of acquaintance. His memory is yet venerated. He died June, 1826, aged 68. He married Mercy Humphrey, daughter of Oliver Humphrey, Esq., in 1786. She was born in 1762; died 1826, aged 64 years.

Their first son, Jeremiah Humphrey Hallock, was born 1790; graduated at Williams College, Mass., 1809, and entered the profession of law. He was long the presiding judge in the Ohio Circuit Court, and died at Steubenville, Ohio, 1848, at the age of 58.

The second son, William Homan Hallock, was born 1795; yet survives, and owns and occupies the place occupied by his father, excepting the dwelling-house, which is now owned and occupied by Mr. Hallock's successor in the ministry, Rev. Jairus Burt.

Daughter Sarah was born 1799: died 1813, aged 14 years.

ITEMS OF HISTORY OF THE HIGLEY FAMILY, AND RACE OF DESCENDANTS.

JOHN HIGLEY, Esq., was among the early settlers in Windsor, and among the early settlers in Simsbury. The place where he and his numerous descendants lived in Simsbury, was north-west from Tariffville. It was formerly called Higley town, after the name of its inhabitants. He married Hannah, daughter of John and Hannah Drake, and granddaughter of Dea. John and Hannah Moore, married, A. D. 1671. He was honored with many of the highest offices in the gift of his fellow-citizens, being the first appointed justice of the peace, and soon after, judge of the county court. He represented the town at the General Assembly, for many sessions, subsequent to the year 1698. He was the first military captain, being chosen in 1698, an office at that time of great dignity. His children were John Jun., or 2d, born 1673; Jonathan, born 1675; Hannah, born 1677; Rebecca, born 1679; Brewster, born 1681. Of these, Hannah, the oldest daughter, married Joseph Trumbull, in 1704, and became the mother of the first Governor Jonathan Trumbull, and his honorable descendants, who for many years held a high rank among Connecticut worthies.

Brewster, the third son, was married A. D. 1708, to Esther, (or Hester,) daughter of Nathaniel Holcomb, and granddaughter of the first Thomas Holcomb. Their children were Brewster, Jun., born 1711; Joseph, born 1713; David, born 1715; Hannah, born 1717; Hester, born 1719; John, (the third of the name,) born 1721; Elizabeth, born 1723; Naomi, born 1725. These eight persons, who are all that are known of as belonging to this family, lived to great age; their several ages when added together make the round number of 646 years, which divided by eight, makes the average longevity to be about eighty years and nine months. There are now living in Canton several families, who, through the female line are descendants of this ancient Higley family. Hannah, the oldest daughter, became the wife of Elijah Owen, the first, about the year 1734. She had by him, Rebecca, who married Benedict Alford, and removed to Vermont. She lived to the age of 95 years. One child died in infancy; Elijah Jun., or 2d, who died at Otis, in 1814, aged 76; Hannah, was the wife of Capt. John Brown, and the mother of the Brown family in Canton, and died there in the year 1831, aged 91 years. The aforementioned Hannah Higley, widow of Elijah Owen, for a second marriage, married Peletiah Mills, Esq., in the year 1748. Their children were Peletiah, Samuel, Roger, Martha, Eli, Frederick, Susanna and Elihu, the father of the Mills in the town of Bloomfield. Martha married a Barnard; Susanna married a Hubbard; Hester married Capt. Josiah Case, and was the mother of the late Capt. Fithen Case, and that connection; Elizabeth married Rev. Gideon Mills, minister of West Simsbury; Naomi married Solomon Humphrey, Sen., or 1st, and was the mother of Solomon Humphrey, Jun., or 2d, and that connection. Brewster, Jun., the oldest son, was the father of the wife of Abel Case, Sen., and that connection, also grand parent of the wife of the late Plinny Humphrey, and the mother of Norman Case. John, the fourth son of Brewster, Sen., and the third of the name of John, married Apphia, daughter of Jonathan Humphrey, the first, and great granddaughter of the first Michael Humphrey. He resided a part of his family state in Canton, though mostly in Old Simsbury. His sons were John, Carmi, Obed, Isaac, Eber, Roger, and Job. His daughters were the wife of Dea. Jared Mills, and the wife of Job Mills. John, Jun., or John the 4th, resided in the north-west part of the Farms school-district, in Canton, on land now owned by the heirs of the late Asaph Tuller, Esq. Among his children were the wife of Abraham Barber, Jun., John, Timothy and Dan. The father died May, 1802. The family are now extinct in Canton. Carmi, another son of John Higley, 3d, married Hestor, widow of Thomas Case, 2d, and daughter of Capt. Josiah Case. He was in the American army in the autumn of 1776; was taken a prisoner by the British, and with many others, confined in one of the New York churches, then made a prison of, for the purpose of starving soldiers to death, where he died under British cruelty. He left an infant son of his own name; that son was lost at sea when a man, some forty years of age or more. Obed Higley, son of John Higley, of the fourth degree inclusive from the first John Higley, married Miss Rebecca Mills. He resided most of his family state upon the premises now owned by his son, Alson Higley.

His last family residence was on land about one-fourth of a mile north of Gen. E. Hosford's. He had been at work on the house of Mr. Jesse Case, Sen., now the residence of Samuel S. Case. He went into the well to clean the bottom of it, and lost his life by the damps or and Joshua; likewise daughters; among them the wife of Elijah Messenger, and the wife of Ezra Paine. The history of this family is but imperfectly known.

HISTORICAL SKETCH OF THE MILLS FAMILY.

In giving some historical sketches of the Mills genealogy herewith appended, it may be proper to state that from common report and investigations carefully made, there were two distinct families of that name who settled in New England, one of English and the other of Dutch descent. Of the latter may be named Rev. Gideon Mills and Rev. Zedekiah Mills, nephews, Rev. Samuel J. Mills and the Rev. Edmund Mills. Of the English descent, tradition says they came from Yorkshire, England. Simon Mills' name first occurs. This Simon Mills married Mary Buel, February 23d, 1649, twenty-nine years after the first settlement of Plymouth. He resided in Windsor previous to 1669, and removed to and settled at Weatauge, East Simsbury. Whether he was a native of New England or not can not be ascertained; one inference is certain, his father was a native of England. This Simon had eleven children, five sons and six daughters; two sons supposed to have died in infancy or in youth.

JOHN MILLS, son of the last named Simon, was the immediate ancestor of Joseph Mills who settled in West Simsbury. This John Mills married Sarah Pettibone; report says the first ancestor of the Pettibones came from England during Cromwell's wars.

This John Mills had four children, viz., John, Benjamin, Joseph and Sarah. Benjamin and Joseph were twin brothers; Sarah had three husbands, Samuel Tuller, Francis Garrett, Joseph Woodford, whom she survived; children only by the two first.

Mrs. Woodford died in 1797, aged 100 years; her children were noted for their longevity. John Mills the immediate ancestor of the family, died in early life. His surviving widow married Dea. John Humphrey, by whom she had several children, among whom may be named John, Hannah, Benajah, Michael, and Rev. Daniel Humphrey, father of the celebrated Gen. David Humphrey. Joseph Mills, whose record is given, (and grandfather of the compiler* of these historical notes of the family,) was a native of Simsbury, born 1694, and died April 19th, 1783, aged 89 years. At the age of thirty years he married Hannah Adams, aged fifteen years, who was born 1709. She died September 1776, aged 67. They had fourteen children, ten sons and four daughters, all of whom he lived to see married and have children. He removed from Meadow Plain, Old Parish, to West Simsbury, in 1742 or 1743.

Without ostentation it may be stated that of the ten sons of which the family were composed, one was colonel of militia, three were captains of military companies, and five were deacons of Congregational churches.

Nodiah Case, by whom he has had three children, viz., Sarah Jane, born December 11th, 1844; Addison Nodiah, born March 20th, 1850, and died February 5th, 1853; Ephraim Wilbur, born April 18th, 1854.

Ephraim Mills, now (April, 1855) resides on the premises previously occupied by Zacheus Case, Stephen Harris, and Jacob and Joseph Foote.

Tradition says that Simon Mills, son of the first Simon named in these sketches, when a man, and when the country was infested by lurking and hostile Indians, went into the field to plow, accompanied by two large dogs. An Indian lay in ambush through the day to kill him and take his scalp. Uncle Simon was closely followed by his faithful dogs. The Indian was afraid that unless he killed him outright, uncle Simon would set his dogs upon him, and he would immediately be torn to pieces, which circumstance was the cause of saving Uncle Simon's life. This Indian was afterward taken for murder and executed. At the time of his execution, he disclosed the facts here narrated.

EZEKIEL MILLS, the sixth son of Dea. Joseph Mills. married Ursula Phelps, a native of Hebron, about the year 1762. They resided most of their family state, on the premises now owned by Robert Wilcox, until 1794, when he removed to Becket, Mass. They subsequently removed to the State of Ohio where they both died.

His house was on the site of the house now owned by Rev. Jairus Burt. He removed to Middlebury, State of Vermont, in 1787; was reputed an eminently pious and useful man. He resided most of his family state on the premises now owned by Alanson Merrills and Harvey Mills, in the West Hill district. He was a captain during most of the campaigns during the Revolutionary war, but never received anything for his time and suffering in the American cause.

He was a man of Christian integrity toward God and his fellow-citizens. His prayers and his pious example will operate long after he is sleeping in the dust, and although he possessed but little of this world's treasure, yet he kept the world indebted to him while he lived in it. The last years of his life he became quite deaf, and his tottering form was permitted to ascend the pulpit, always standing in prayer by the side of the venerable Hallock.

COL. —— MILLS was a soldier in the old French war on the borders of Canada; he commanded a company in nearly all of the campaigns of the war of the Revolution. He became a major near its close and was a colonel in the militia. He was reputed a good officer and a useful citizen.

REV. GIDEON MILLS was the seventh son of the first Peter Mills, of Hollandish descent; his wife whose maiden name was Elizabeth, daughter of Brewster Higley, spent the most part of her youth and girlhood in the family of her cousin, the first Gov. Trumbull, of Lebanon. The Rev. Mr. Mills, having been minister of Old Simsbury about ten years previous to 1755, after living and preaching one or two years in West Simsbury, he was installed in the year 1759. He lived and died on the place which was left to his son Gideon, and which after passing through several hands was lately owned by Henry Foote.

All the time of his ministry in West Simsbury, he lived two and a half miles from the meeting-house, over a very hilly, cold and uneven road, which would now be called a hard sabbath day's journey for a clergyman or a layman; this road he traveled weekly, and sometimes much oftener. One incident respecting the Rev. Gideon Mills is thought worthy of notice. He was habitually fond of sacred music, and would request others that could sing to join with him and he retained his relish for singing even to his dying moments. He died of a cancer in the face, which kept him in great suffering, for many of the last weeks of his life. He dwelt much on the sentiments expressed in the 38th psalm, (Watts,) "Amidst thy wrath remember love," &c.; also the 39th. "God of my life look gently down." Just before he expired he requested the friends in attendance to sing the 38th psalm, "Amidst they wrath remember love," and attempted to join with them, but when the fore part of the psalm was sung he expired, so that it was said by Mr. Hallock, on a certain occasion, that he died singing the 38th psalm.

SKECH OR HISTORY OF THE ANCIENT MILLS FAMILY, THAT WERE BORN AND BROUGHT UP IN WINTONBURY, NOW BLOOMFIELD, AS A DISTINCT RACE FROM THE MILLS OF SIMSBURY AND CANTON.

PETER MILLS, the great ancestor of that race of Mills, came from Holland. Tradition is that his Dutch name before settling in this country was something like Van Molan, which was changed to Mills. He was born 1666, and died 1754, aged 88. He resided near the east part of what is now Bloomfield, eastward from the residence of Samuel Mills, near the confines of Windsor Plain. He was by trade a tailor, which business he followed through the active part of his life. He had seven sons; their names were Jedediah, who graduated at Yale College, A. D. 1722; entered the ministry, and settled in the part of Stratford then called Ripton, now Huntington. He was a minister of considerable note in that period; some of his works were published. He was the ancestor of the Mills in Fairfield and New Haven counties. Pelatiah, another son, was born 1693, and was an able attorney at law, and useful citizen, and was the ancestor of the Mills now remaining in Bloomfield and Windsor. John, another son, was the father of Rev. Samuel John, and Rev. Edmund, minister of Sutton, Mass. Peter was the father of a numerous offspring scattered in various parts of the country; among them Mrs. Anna Hinman; now living in Canton; Rev. Ebenezer, graduate of 1739, first minister of East Granby. His descendants are in Sandisfield and vicinity. Rev. Gideon, the seventh son, graduated at Yale College, A. D. 1737; settled in Simsbury first, afterward in West Simsbury. (See history of Rev. Gideon Mills.) There was in the early part of the family, one by the name of Return, about whom very little is now known further than the record that she died A. D. 1689. Pelatiah, 2d, a grandson of Peter, was a man held in high estimation, both in civil, ecclesiastical, and religious concerns. He died, 1786.

REV. SAMUEL MILLS, son of Rev. Gideon Mills, commenced study in early life with a view to the gospel ministry. He graduated at Yale College, A. D. 1776. Being full of the patriotism prevalent at that time, he entered the American army as lieutenant in the cavalry. In one of those actions which took place in the autumn of 1777, this young officer received a wound from a horseman's sword, in the forehead; was taken prisoner and conveyed into Philadelphia, with a deep and dangerous wound, the scar of which he carried through the remainder of his life. The sick and wounded prisoners in Philadelphia, experienced far different treatment from that which those unfortunate American prisoners received from the British and Tories in New York in 1776. A kind Providence furnished a goodly number of ministering angels, (if the expression might be allowable,) in the persons of some of the most accomplished ladies of Philadelphia. Those of superior rank and refinement, took it upon them to visit and minister to the wants of the suffering prisoners. Among those worthy ladies was Miss Sarah Gilpin, a person of high refinement and accomplishments. Her labors of benevolence, brought her and Lieut. Samuel to an acquaintance, which eventuated in his obtaining her hand and heart. He pursued and finished his theological studies, and was married to Miss Gilpin, and was settled pastor over the church and society of Chester, then a part of Saybrook. She was the mother of eight children. Their names were Mary, Samuel, Thomas Sarah, Emily, Gideon John, Eliza and Benoni. She died in 1796. Mr. Mills, in the year 1798, married Miss Rebecca Belden, daughter of Col. John Belden, of Wethersfield. They had one son, born in 1800. The mother died in 1801. Mr. Mills afterward married his third wife, with whom he lived till 1814, when he died of typhus fever, which was then prevalent in that town. Mrs. Mills, the third wife, died but a few days after him, of the same disease.

JOHN MILLS, JUN., was born 1690, and was son of John Mills, Sen., and brother to Dea. Joseph Mills, of West Simsbury. He with his wife Damaris Phelps, married 1720, and resided on the land at the junction of the lovely street road with the Hartford and Albany turnpike, near the old Hosford stand. They had four sons, Job, John, David and Jared; also a daughter Prudence, who was married to Samuel Humphrey, 4th.

WILLIAM ROBERTS, 1st. There were among the early settlers of West Simsbury, two by the name of William Roberts. It is not known what relationship they sustained to each other, if any. They will be here distinguished in this work by the term of 1st and 2d. William Roberts, 1st, was among the pioneers of the town of Canton. His residence was on land, now the east part of the farm of Israel W. Graham. His wife was Hannah ——. They probably had several children, but nothing is known to the writer except what follows, viz., their daughter Anna, who was born in 1748, became the wife of Abel Adams. Record tells us also, that Mr. and Mrs. Roberts buried a daughter Susannah, born in 1756, and died the same year. The parents, about the time of the commencement of the American Revolution, removed to the State of Vermont, which closes their history as it respects Canton.

WILLIAM ROBERTS, 2d. commenced family state, with his wife Phebe Wilcox, about 1756. They resided in the vicinity of the village of Collinsville. He lost his life in attempting to cross the dam at Segur's mill, at low water. An axe that he was known to have with him when he was last seen, was found near the dam, although his body had floated down stream many rods. His death happened about the year 1774. His widow afterward married John Wallen, of New Hartford.

JOSEPH SEGUR, JUN., was an early settler in West Simsbury. He resided on the west side of Farmington river. His house stood where is now the center of Collinsville, west village. The farm that he owned, now belongs to the Collins Company, and Samuel W. Collins, Esq. During a great share of his family state previous to 1795, he tended the grist-mill, then called Segur's Mill. The mill stood the east side of the river some eight or ten rods south of the main bridge, the great flat rock in the middle of the river, making the middle part of the dam, which was a low one. He daily crossed the river in his canoe, to go to and from the grist-mill, when the river was not frozen sufficient to be safe crossing on the ice. Among his children were Israel, Charles, Benoni, the wife of Eliphilet Alford, and two other daughters. He, with his son Benoni, removed to New Hartford in 1805, to spend the remainder of his days, where he and his wife died in 1818. The family are now gone from this town. His father Joseph Segur, Sen., married Dorothy Alford in 1730. The writer will relate one little incident connected with that mill, which made some sport among the people at the time being. Mr. Chauncey Gleason, a trader in the East Village, then called Suffrage, having a quantity of brimstone in the roll or lump, wishing to pulverize it into fine sulphur, (an article sometimes used in families at that time,) carried a large quantity of it to Segur's mill to be ground, in the year 1789-90; it was put into the corn-mill, but it soon took fire and flamed up frightfully. Gleason ran to the river and brought water in his hat to extinguish the flames. The undertaking soon proved a failure, and in the operation, Mr. Gleason having on a valuable broadcloth coat, spoiled it for use; the mill became thoroughly scented with the itch antidote, and the event was well spread abroad. A neighboring poor family had a small grist of Indian corn ground in the mill afterward, and in trying to bake some of the meal in Johnny cakes before the fire, their cakes ignited and blazed up. A man by the name of Bethuel Parker, an apt poetical genius, wrote a lengthy and apt poem on this laughable subject, entitled "Hell upon Earth, or Brimstone in the Grist-Mill," touching upon different parts of the scene, something after the manner of Cowper's John Gilpin. He compared the blazing of the mill and Johnny cakes, to Mount Etna in a blaze. The closing lines were:

"Then Segur cries out in bitterness of soul,
Have mercy, Lord, though I did take large toll."

CALEB SPENCER, with his wife Hannah ——, came from Hartford, and first settled and built near the dwelling-house of the late Giles Lattimer. He subsequently bought of Daniel Barber, of Simsbury, and lived and died on the place now owned by his great grandson, Amos L. Spencer, North Canton. He settled in this town about 1756.

— SMITH, married a daughter of Nathaniel Alford, 1st. He, with his brother-in-law, Joseph Tiff, resided away from the road, south of the John Hill farm, near the south end of the east mountain. He was known by the vulgar name of Noggy Smith. He removed to Vermont about A. D. 1786.

JOSEPH TIFF, with his wife Susan, daughter of Nathaniel Alford, 1st, lived with his brother-in-law Smith, on the East Hill. The family have long been gone from this town. This is all that can now be ascertained respecting these two families, that had a place among the first settlers.

SOLOMON THOMAS was an early settler in West Simsbury. He, with his wife Lugia, lived on the place now owned by Miles and Mills Foot. His son Samuel lived with them. They both removed to Otis, Mass., about the year 1798, where the old gentleman died the beginning of the present century, aged about 90. His wife had died in the year 1779; she was also daughter of Nathaniel Alford, 1st. But little more is known about this family.

WILLIAM TAYLOR, with his second wife Ruth, the widow of — Higgins, came from Middletown about the year 1756, and settled on premises now owned by Alson Barber. They both had previously been married to other partners, and he had children, John and Mary, and probably others. She, by her first marriage, had Nathaniel Higgins, who died in 1809, aged 60 years. The time of the birth, death, or age, of Mr. Taylor's first children is not known. Mr. Taylor, in the early part of his life, previous to coming to West Simsbury, was a seaman. His oldest son John resided at or near the place now occupied by Martin Moses. Mr. Taylor died of the small-pox; he was quite sure that he had had it in the West Indies; but when his son John's children had it, and seeing how hard it went with them, he was led to believe that he might be mistaken with regard to himself, and was accordingly inoculated with the small-pox and died, and was buried on the hill north-west of the house of Elijah Whiting.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES OF THE ANCESTRY OF THE WILCOX FAMILIES IN SIMSBURY, CANTON. &c.

SAMUEL WILCOX, (then spelt Wilcoxson,) was the ancestor of all those that bear the name of Wilcox in this vicinity. He was an early settler in Simsbury, but the exact time is not known. It appears that he resided at Meadow Plain, and as Avon, adjoining to Simsbury, had at its early existence, some families of that name, it is probable that they sprung from this early stock through Samuel, 2d, the oldest son of the first Samuel. He had three sons, viz., Samuel, 2d, William and Joseph. It is not known that any of the descendants of the second Samuel ever settled in West Simsbury. Samuel, 2d, had sons, Joseph, born 1701; Ephraim, born 1707, and probably others. William, son of the first Samuel, had sons, John, William, 2d, known by the title of Dea. William, Amos and Azariah. Dea. William had sons, William, 3d, or Lieut. William who settled in West Simsbury. (See History of Lieut. William Wilcox.) Amos, another brother of Dea. William, had Amos, 2d, called Col. Amos, three brothers and five sisters; none of them became residents of this town. Azariah had sons, Elisha, 1st, Aaron, and others. Elisha was father of the late Elisha, 2d, and Col. Azariah, and was the ancestor of Harvey and Chester and their sisters. Joseph, 1st, the third son of Samuel, 1st, born 1674, was the father of the Joseph Wilcox, race in Canton. (See History of Joseph Wilcox 1st, and 2d.) There was raised up in the north-east part of Simsbury or Granby, Joseph Wilcox, Esq., who was son to the second Samuel; this Joseph was justice of the peace, representative, &c., for some twenty years, subsequent to 1738, who is supposed to be father of Joseph and Hosea Wilcox, of Norfolk, who were old men at Norfolk in 1800, but were never inhabitants of Canton. Joseph, 1st, was the father of Joseph Jun., Hezekiah, Nathaniel, Ezra, 1st, or Sen., and sisters.

There was an Ephraim Wilcox, appeared in West Simsbury about 1746. He might be a brother of Esquire Joseph, but this is uncertain. Ephraim, aforementioned, married the widow of Thomas Bidwell, Sen., and was the father of Philander, Martin, Asa and Jehiel. (See History of Philander Wilcox and Brothers.)

JOSEPH WILCOX, SEN., was son of the first Samuel Wilcox, (then spelt Wilcoxson.) He came from the Old Parish to reside among his sons and spend the latter part of his days with them; when he came to West Simsbury is not definitely known.

These three with their mother, all died between the 28th of August and the 12th of September, 1776, of the malignant dysentery, a disease that raged at that time in the army, and among the citizens at home, through a great portion of the northern states.

The husband and father of the deceased ones subsequently married Abigail, daughter of Capt. Zacheus Case. They were the parents of Abigail, Thanks, Achsah and Philemon; but another dreadful stroke awaited them, for in September, 1787, Achsah, aged 3 years, and Philemon aged 10 months, died of the dreadful disease called croup or rattles in the throat. They died on the 27th of September, 1787, but fifteen minutes apart and were both buried in one coffin. They afterward had (as it is understood) four children.

C H A P T E R

ON THE

Black Citizens of West Simsbury.

JAMES BALTIMORE, known as Jim Balt, was an inhabitant of this town as early or earlier than 1774. He resided with or near Capt. Dudley Case, in the part of New Hartford that is now Canton. His first wife died as early as 1780, and left two children, viz., Polly, born 1775, and Sam, born 1778. Sam remained with Capt. Dud (so called) for nearly thirty years, and was indulged with greater privileges and liberties than commonly fall to the lot of colored people in families of wealth and standing. He appeared to talk as though he had a good share of influence and direction in the common departments of business, and was known to say that Capt. Dud, should never come to want while he lived. The sister, Poll, fared harder in the world, and saw much trouble and ill-usage. They both left this part of the country many years ago. James, the father, for second wife, married Susannah, daughter of Col. London Wallace. (Negroes received and valued military and civil titles of honor highly.) He was set up on the east end of the farm of Charles and Benajah Humphrey, south-east of the house of Bera Case. They had a number of children; part of them died in infancy and childhood. While the family remained in their tenement, it was the place of resort for colored people, both relatives and others, which is generally the case where the colored people have a shelter, a family, and something to live on for the present.

LONDON CHESTER, (called Governor, as it was understood that he had held that office among the Wethersfield negroes.) He was through the prime of life, the servant of Col. John Chester, the elder. It is not known at what period of time he received his freedom. He had a wife named Betty, and during the last years of her life he resided at the place now called Indian Hill, on the premises now owned by the Messrs. Pike. His wife died in 1787, and he after that time became dependent on the public for support. It appears from his own statements that he came from Africa quite young, as he spoke better English than was common for that race. One incident he used to relate, would show that he came to this country young. He said that in the early part of his life with Master Chester, he saw one morning what he thought to be a very pretty puppy; he accordingly seized him with a view to play with him, but the skunk soon convinced him that he was playing with the wrong animal. From that story originated the name of "Wethersfield puppy." He died near the close of the last century, aged about 80 years, a pauper supported by New Hartford.

CHARLES PRINCE married Tabitha Quamino; he had been several years in the employ of Capt. Dudley Case, and was viewed by the family and the people of the neighborhood, as an honest, industrious and meritorious citizen, and still more, he and his wife were called worthy members of the church. He died of consumption, A. D. 1828, and the process had already begun whereby he was wronged out of the small pittance of landed estate which his deceased patron had given him years before, but had not executed the deed; from that period the family appeared to sink under their misfortunes. Some died, some left the town, and very little is known respecting the circumstances of the survivors if any yet remain.

SIMON FLETCHER, known as Lieut. Simon, erected a house, and lived in it on the land of Capt. Dudley Case. It should be borne in mind that Capt. Case, with his first wife Susanna, were reputed kind guardians of the blacks, and helpers of the indigent whites who lived on his premises or in the neighborhood. Simon's house stood by the brook, at the foot of the hill on the road leading to Harvey Mills residence. The name of his wife is not known, neither the number of his children, but among his children was Julius, who had his skull broken in by the kick of a horse; Julius was born about 1775. The family disappeared from this part as early as 1795. Simon was what is called a second or third rate fiddler, and the same may be said of a great share of the men of color of those times. On the east confines of New Hartford, and on the north-west part of Old Simsbury, called Negrotown, were many blacks, and among them a good number of fiddlers. It was also observable, that wherever there was a colored family that possessed in good measure the comforts of life, there were sure to be plenty of hangers on.

CÆSAR WILCOX was probably brought from Africa after he had arrived to adult years. He through life, spoke very broken English. He, or his services, were called the property of Joseph Wilcox, 2d, or Jun. When his master was found dead by his fall in the barn in 1759, Cæsar was the one who first discovered him ; he went into the house to inform his mistress, but so broken was his language; that it required a long time with the help of signs, before he could make her understand what he wanted to communicate to her. He was afterward sold into the State of New York, where he remained till after the death of his master. The writer of this article once heard him say that he dug his second master's grave. It was currently reported that while living in the State of New York, he married or cohabited with a woman of his race, and they had some children. He in some way left his New York residence and returned to Connecticut; the time not definitely known, but probably as late as 1780, after which he lived in an unsettled state, according as he found friends or employers; sometimes faring middling well, and sometimes very poor. When Canton was incorporated in 1806, he by agreement was taken by Old Simsbury, who supported him during the last years of his life. He died in 1812, quite aged, having seen enough of this world's kindness toward worn out blacks.

There have been several colored persons who have resided a few years in Canton, but not in family state at so early a period as what this work is treating of. This general remark is true with respect to Canton, as with other towns, and even with Connecticut, viz., that the colored race have strangely dwindled away, and in great measure disappeared within the last sixty-five years, and no one can tell what has become of them. There were, at different periods of time, between 1750 and 1776, some four or five negroes held as servants. Some of them had died, and those that remained were voluntarily released.

SKETCH OF THE
First Ecclesiastical Society of West Simsbury,
N O W C A N T O N.

ABOUT the year 1741, the people of West Simsbury began to hold religious meetings on the Sabbath, in private houses. From 1747 to 1750, two preachers, Rev. Adonijah Bidwell and Rev. Timothy Pitkin, were employed to preach, each for a short time. This section of the town was constituted a distinct parish by an act of the General Assembly, May, 1750. The Congregational church was organized, it is supposed, about the same time. The same year, Rev. Evander Morrison, who was from Scotland, was installed first pastor of the church. For some cause, Mr. Morrison was dismissed about eleven months after his installation. The next pastor was Rev. Gideon Mills, who was installed in 1759, and continued pastor of the church thirteen years. The third pastor was Rev. Seth Sage, installed 1774, and dismissed 1778. Rev. Jeremiah Hallock was the fourth pastor of the church. He was ordained October 26th, 1785, and continued pastor till his death in June, 1826, a period of about forty-one years. Rev. Jairus Burt; the present pastor, was ordained December 20th, 1826.

The first meeting-house was built in 1763, and was occupied by the society fifty-one years, having been taken down in 1814. A new house erected on the same spot, (now Canton Center,) was dedicated January 5th, 1815. (See Phelps' History of Simsbury, Granby and Canton.)

NOTABLE EVENTS.

And remarkable seasons which occurred at different periods, and were of public notoriety at the time of their happening, and had an important bearing on many individuals, and in some instances on the whole population of the then inhabitants of the society of West Simsbury, (now Canton.)

1755.—The French War which existed in former years at different periods, became more operative and distressing to New England and the other northern States. Certain youngerly men were called into the English army; some of them lost their lives.

1762.—Was the time of the unfortunate expedition against Havannah; several young men went in a company which was raised principally, in the then town of Simsbury, under the command of Capt. Noah Humphrey. Among the soldiers of that company were Dudley Miller, and Jonathan Barber, both of whom died. Theophilus Humphrey went and lived to return.

1763.—Was memorable for the peace between England and France.

1775.—Memorable for the commencement of the Revolutionary War, which called many men into the army in the vicinity of Boston.

1776.—Memorable for the declaration of American independence; the many disasters that befel the American army, both by defeat and by mortal sickness, which prevailed among the officers and soldiers in the army, and spread among the citizens at home in the summer and autumn, and sent death and mourning into many families, and almost entirely destroyed some, that a few weeks before were prosperous and healthful.

1777.—Was memorable to Canton, by the breaking out of the small-pox among the people; some six to ten died, and others were brought, as it were, to death's door. Soldiers returning from the war, brought the disease and gave it to their families and friends. The sufferings and privations of the people were great; among many other things, the want of laborers to raise and harvest the crops, necessary for the sustenance of life to man and beast. It was a well-authenticated fact at the time and afterward, that many females belonging to respectable families, from the necessity of the case, voluntarily performed manual labor on the farms, with the hoe, the manure fork, the hay fork and the sickle, and other farming tools commonly used by farmers and their sons. It would surely be a sight worth looking at for the young females at the present day, if they could see their grandmothers performing that labor which was laid upon them for the helps of their families and their country.

1778.—The latter part of this year and the beginning of 1779, was memorable for much sickness in North Canton; the disease was then called the long fever.

1779.—Memorable for a very early and forward spring. It passed as a well-attested fact by credible men, that apple trees were in full blossom on the 15th of April; but there afterward came a severe and cutting frost that destroyed all the fruit.

1779-80.—This winter was remarkably severe and long, attended with excessive deep snows, which occasioned great hardships and sufferings in various ways to man and beast.

1780.—Was noted for the dark day that occurred May 19th. It was probably occasioned by an accumulation of thick and dense masses of vapor and smoke.

1781.—Was memorable for the burning of New London and the inhuman butchery of the garrison at fort Griswold, on Groton hill; but Connecticut was soon cheered with the joyful news of the capture of Lord Cornwallis, which put a brighter appearance on the prospects of America.

1783.—Was blessed and the country with it, by bringing about peace between England and the United States; and the return home of officers and soldiers from the army. This year was also noted for the great revival of religion which commenced early in the summer and continued into the year 1784. There were a goodly number then added to the visible Church, who very generally through life, were an honor to the blessed cause which they professed, and so lived and died as to obtain a good report. The fruits of that revival have all been gathered in. Mr. Edmund Mills, nephew of the Rev. Gideon Mills, the former minister, was the preacher for a number of months, assisted by Messrs. Robins, Gillett, Mills, Miller, Smalley, and others, who were providentially sent there to preach and attend religious meetings.

1785.—Was blessed by the ministerial labors and settlement of the Rev. Mr. Hallock, whose pious and useful labors with us continued more than forty years.

1786.—Was memorable for the appearance of the insect called the Hessian fly. It was among other events noted for an extreme high and destructive flood in October.

1787.—Memorable by the promulgation of the new Constitution of the United States. Some in Simsbury liked it, while others hated it. The town of Simsbury instructed their two delegates, Gen. Noah Phelps, and Esquire Daniel Humphrey, to oppose its adoption by the State, and they obeyed their instructions, though Esquire Humphrey said it was against his personal inclination, but it was adopted in the State Constitution in January, 1788.

1788.—Was a wet, cold unfruitful summer; grain of all kinds very poor. A very destructive wind or hurricane in August, which prostrated the poor standing corn, made great destruction in the groves of wood, injured many buildings, and entirely destroyed some.

1789.—Was a time of uncommon scarcity for bread, the staff of life, and almost a famine was occasioned by the previous unfruitful year. Many families who were termed good livers, and of middling property, lived on bran bread, while others ordered their rye ground without bolting, and in other respects, lived on food to correspond with it, while many were much troubled to obtain that coarse fare, for labor or money. In a word, it was a time of great scarcity and extreme suffering among the people, till the last of July, when the rye went to the grist mill, very soon from the hands of the reapers. In the spring of this year, blossoms and vegetation generally were backward, but the summer was fruitful. In October, appeared among us and through this region of country, the epidemic called influenza. It proved destructive to many, especially to the aged and infirm. It appeared again in April and May, 1790, with similar effect.

1793.—Was a year of much sickness among children and youth; the disease was canker rash or scarlet fever, which sent sorrow and mourning into many families.

1794.—The spring was uncommonly early and forward; apple blossoms were seen as early as the 22d of April, vegetation progressed rapidly, blossoms fell off, and were followed by the young fruit, but on the night of the 17th of May, there came a destructive frost that killed fruit and vegetation, which was so forward that even rye was killed on some low land, and garden productions destroyed, all that could be hurt by the frost.

1795.—Was termed a favorable year for farmers; English grain, corn, and grass uncommonly good; grain and live stock commanding a high price. But the seeds were germinating whereby in 1796, the American commerce was seriously annoyed, both by England and France, which annoyance continued till 1800. The Jay treaty settled the matter as it respected England, but it raised the jealousy of France in 1796, which eventuated in French depredations on American commerce, which lasted till the conclusion of the Ellsworth treaty in 1800. During the four years previous to 1800, there were honorable politicians, who by looking through different glasses, saw the position of the different parties, and in this period the two great parties called Federalists and Democrats arose, and entered the political field in violent combat against each other, both of them claiming the honor of following the political opinions, and walking in the footsteps of the great Father of his country—Washington. This party strife has passed through different shapes, assumed various names and enlisted and paid different partisans, for more than sixty years; but enough of these remarks. The great political campaign of 1800, resulted in a change of men and measures, as respected the national government; and there have been the ins and the outs, as respected power, at all periods, in the country's history.

1798.—Was memorable by a great and powerful work of the Holy Spirit, in awakening and hopefully converting many stout-hearted sinners, and among them some who had fortified themselves in infidelity. The reformation appeared to be notable, and was visible through their after lives. See the notice of that revival as published in the Connecticut Evangelical Magazine, for December, 1800.

1801.—March was rendered memorable by the inauguration of President Jefferson in the chair of state. A notable event soon after followed, viz., the Jefferson flood, an event of great notoriety. It far surpassed anything of the kind within the memory of the oldest of the Fathers, and most of the high water marks yet remain unsurpassed for the last fifty-five years. It carried off the grist and saw mill belonging to Moses & Cleveland, (situated west of the house of Marvin Case,) and in it a boy and girl belonging to Mr. Josiah Atkins; the girl was saved but the boy perished, aged 16 years. His body was found in the meadows more than a mile below the mill.

The winters of 1801 and 1802 were uncommonly mild and open; but the winter of 1803-4; was remarkable in the opposite extreme. The winter commenced in earnest on the 24th of December, and continued with increasing severity, and without material mitigation, until near the last of March. The snows were frequent, and very deep on a level, and were by the wind whirled into drifts of uncommon depth, so that most of the roads except the most public, and constant traveled ones, were wholly forsaken and untraveled for several weeks. There were deep snow-drifts, even in some sunshining places till near the last days of May. It was at that time thought to surpass any winter that had been since 1780.

1805.—Was in some respects notable for good to Canton in religious concerns. There were appearances of an awakening in June. At that time the vegetable world was to appearance, threatened with a severe drouth, especially the Indian corn. On the last sabbath in July, Mr. Hallock appointed a day of humiliation and prayer for the church and people, on the following Wednesday, taking into consideration the low state of religion, and the dependence of the people on the great Giver of all good. The day came and was observed by the religious community, with some degree of sincerity. But during the afternoon of that day the people were met by a plentiful supply of temporal rain, and an apparent increase of spiritual blessings. The weeks that followed were weeks of fruitfulness. The religious part of the community were wont to speak of that favor as a kind interposition of a merciful God.

1806.—Was memorable for the incorporation of the town of Canton. With respect to the season, a severe drouth commenced in June and lasted till September. It killed the turf in many of the upland mow lots, but the summer of 1807, was so extremely wet and growing, as to restore the ground to its wonted greenness.

1808.—Was memorable to Canton by the malady called the spotted fever, which in April, May and June, sent death, and sorrow, and mourning, into many of our dwellings.

1809--10.—The winter of 1809--10, was noted as a remarkable open winter. It was literally true that people might, as respected the state of the ground, have plowed every month in the winter.

1810.—Was very memorable for the sudden change from warm to cold, which happened on the 18th of January. The afternoon of that day was uncommonly mild and even warm for the season, but before eleven o'clock that night, the cold was intense, and the wind blowing a hurricane. The public journals of that period told of many strange appearances; of freezing high wind, upon agitated, freezing water. Many buildings were blown down, and many trees prostrated. The cold continued violent for three succeeding days; then the sudden changes from one extreme of cold or heat to the other, went on as it had done before.

1812.—Was memorable by the breaking out of the war between America and England, which raged with great violence for nearly three years. Different politicians of the different beligerent nations, did, for the time being, express their different views respecting the call for the war, but both nations were extremely glad to be rid of it soon as possible.

1814.—Was memorable to the Congregational church and society of Canton. The meeting-house having become too small for the congregation, and also dilapidated, it was almost unanimously agreed by the society to build a new and commodious house, provided the means could be raised by subscription to defray the expense. The papers were circulated, and the people mostly throughout the entire town, subscribed more or less, and many of the society very liberally, for the object. The necessary funds being raised, the society voted to build on the old site, and with great unanimity and strength removed the old house, reduced the hill on which it stood, and made a dry and pleasant site for the new house. The work of collecting materials for building was soon commenced, at which point Mr. Orange Case, one of the most enterprising and valuable members of the church and society was instantly killed by the falling of a tree, which tree was designed for a part of the frame of the new house. This solemn and unexpected event cast a gloom over the community that was not soon forgotten. But notwithstanding this afflictive dispensation, the Lord gave the people strength and a united heart to go forward and build the house for his worship. The summer season was remarkable for the frequent and powerful showers, accompanied with unusual thunder and lightning, rendering the earth less productive than usual, yet there was a competency for the wants of the people.

1816.—Was remarkable for a cold summer, so much so that the effects of frost were visible in every month except August, during the season. The Indian corn was almost entirely cut off, and the small portion that remained was materially injured. The rye harvest, though threatened by the frosts, was wonderfully preserved and remarkably good, furnishing for the people beyond their most sanguine expectations, the staff of life.

1821.—Was a year of unusual interest on account of a revival of religion, by which the church was strengthened by numbers and graces.

1826.—Was remarkable for the barrenness of the fore part of the summer, which caused a scarcity of food in the pastures, and a short crop of hay for the cattle, by means of which the price of stock was extremely depressed. About the last of August came one of the most powerful rains ever known in this vicinity, and occasioned one of the greatest freshets ever known by the oldest inhabitants, sweeping away mills, bridges, fences and roads, in a manner almost unparalleled. The rain fell principally between the hours of 10 A. M. and 1 P. M.

The latter part of the season was favorable for the products of the earth, which were brought to maturity and furnished the means of subsistance for man and beast. This year was memorable also, on account of the death of Rev. Jeremiah Hallock, the faithful and devoted pastor of the church. The important and interesting relation that had long existed between him and his people was dissolved by his death on the 23d day of June, 1826. His death occasioned the most intense feeling and deep interest, and spread an almost impenetrable cloud over the community; yet his pious and devoted life, and his peaceful death, carried the conviction to every reflecting mind, that he had exchanged this world of toil, and care, and pain, for that better and brighter world above.

His amiable and beloved consort closed her connection with earthly scenes on the 3d day of November, 1826. She was a bright example of industry, economy and piety, always ready to do all in her power to relieve the sick and suffering, and promote the spiritual and temporal welfare of the people. "The heart of her husband did safely trust in her, and her children did rise up and call her blessed."

Soon after the death of Mr. Hallock, the interesting and important question began to be raised, Where shall we go, and whom shall we find to fill the place made vacant by his death?

The committee of the church and society were directed to Mr. Jairus Burt, a licentiate then preaching in Colerain, Mass. He was accordingly invited to supply the pulpit for a time, and accepted the invitation. His labors being acceptable to the church and people, the society in a full meeting, all, with one solitary exception, voted to give him a call to become their pastor. After due consideration, the call was accepted, and in December following, the solemn relation was entered into by his ordination.

1827.—Will be long remembered on account of the great revival of religion which spread over the entire town, and continued for some months causing great accessions to the churches and a moral reformation generally.

In 1831, the church was again blessed with a revival which resulted in gathering a goodly number, including several heads of families, into the church.

Soon after this a church was formed in the village of Collinsville, by means of which a very important portion of the Congregational church and society chose to remove their relation to that church and society, on account of the convenient location, and accordingly the relation heretofore existing was mutually and peacefully dissolved. But notwithstanding the great diminution of members, the first church, and society are, by the blessing of the Great Head of the Church, yet favored with the ordinances of the Gospel, and with the disposition and ability to support them to the present time.
